Steps to Respect[®]

A Bullying Prevention Program

The Steps to Respect program gives administrators, staff, and students the resources they need to create a safe school climate, free from bullying. It can help you establish school policies and train staff to recognize bullying and intervene effectively.

Each classroom kit comes with engaging, interactive lessons and two literature units that reinforce the skills with popular books. The classroom DVDs spark dynamic class discussions, and the six vibrant posters serve as reminders of the skills throughout the day.

- Research- and evidence-based
- Extension activities for use with academic subjects
- Free assessment tools available

Steps to Respect Program Shows Strong Evidence Base

The Fall 2011 issue of School Psychology Review features the first-ever U.S. study to show positive effects from a bullying prevention program. Compared to control schools, Steps to Respect schools found:

- 33 percent less physical bullying
- 35 percent fewer teachers reporting fighting as a major problem
- 20 percent more staff members reporting that their school is promoting a positive environment
