Meet Our Experts

Mia Doces
Vice President of Innovation

Mia Doces has worked in the bullying prevention field for over a decade and is a coauthor of Committee for Children's Bullying Prevention Unit. She has worked on state- and national-level youth initiatives, having served on the Washington State legislative anti-bullying work group and advised organizations from Sesame Workshop to the Born this Way Foundation. Mia is available to discuss bullying prevention, social-emotional learning, and mindfulness for kids and their adults.

Mia's LinkedIn Profile

Bridgid Normand, MEd
Director of Education and Learning

Bridgid Normand was the lead developer for the Second Step Child Protection Unit and played a central role in developing Committee for Children's Bullying Protection Unit. At Committee for Children, she works with researchers and developers to create research-based programs, providing effective ways for kids learn the social-emotional skills that support their success in school and throughout their lives. Bridgid is available to discuss bullying prevention, child protection, and social-emotional learning.

Bridgid's LinkedIn Profile

Jasmine Williams, PhD
Research Scientist

Jasmine Williams supports the development, implementation, and evaluation of Committee for Children programs. She's consulted with leading experts in the field to update our bullying prevention curriculum, and her scholarship has been published in peer-reviewed journals, including the Journal of Early Adolescence, Teaching and Teacher Education, and Research in Human Development. Jasmine is available to discuss harassment and bullying prevention.

Jasmine's LinkedIn Profile

Media Contacts
Shauna McBride
smcbride@cfchildren.org | 206-612-8718

Natalie Ceis
nceis@cfchildren.org | 206-755-3761