Week 1: Kid Kinder Jumps into Action

Lunchtime at Summer Camp

Can I...

Sorry, we don’t have room.

Oh, okay.

That evening at the dock... We should have said something at lunch.

I know.

This is the third time this week he’s excluded someone.

At Kid Kinder’s House...

Two siblings, Zoe and Ari, saw someone being bullied today at camp and are regretting that they didn’t speak up.

Kid Kinder, good to see you.

Can you help them activate their bystander power?

I’m on it.

Week 2: Recognizing Bullying

Kid Worker: You know it takes a lot of courage to speak up when you see bullying.

You can show Zac and Ali that recognizing bullying is important.

Hey! I heard about what happened at lunch yesterday. I’ve been in the exact same situation.

You have?

It can be tough to say something, and if you don’t feel safe, you shouldn’t do it.

But by recognizing bullying, you’ve already started activating your bystander power.

What’s bystander power?

It’s your ability to be a part of the solution if you see bullying or know it’s happening.

But it doesn’t always mean stepping up in the moment. There’s another powerful way to activate your bystander power…

Week 3: Reporting Bullying

Reporting bullying to an adult you trust is a powerful way to activate your bystander power and help prevent future bullying.

What, why are you so afraid to go out in the canoes?
You’re much a baby!

With bullying, kids need to trust that adults will believe them and do something about it. Reporting only works if adults take effective action.

Lisa and Mike won’t stop calling usage mean names.

Thank you both for telling me. I’ll make sure usage is being asked, and I’ll talk with Lisa and Mike so this doesn’t happen again.

Nice work! But you two aren’t the only ones at camp activating your bystander power...
Week 4: Refusing Bullying

Kids are acting like their superheroes, and refusing bullying is different with all over camp. You’re not the only one who wants to put a stop to bullying.

Week 5: Zoey and Ari Put a Stop to Bullying

Look over there, Jerr!

Let's do it!

Zoey, Ari, what are you doing?

I'm sure they are getting something wrong, Jerr. Let's go and see.

Zoey, Ari, you should never encourage a potential bully. Let's step away.

How can we help?

We can encourage them to do something better. Let's talk to them.

Yes, we can.

Can we count on you to continue to help put a stop to bullying?

Yes!
